Jamnick wins by wide margin; LaRue victorious

Banks wins Republican nomination

By JIM KISE
Courier Staff

In the end, it was a landslide for Ruth Ann Jamnick, Ypsilanti Township Treasurer for 22 years and likely to be the next state representative for the Ypsilanti area.

Jamnick pulled 45 percent (3,049) of the Democratic votes cast in the hottest local race. Next was former Superior Township Supervisor David Rutledge with 28 percent (1,890), Willis Israel with 21 percent (1,418) and Mary Williams with 6 percent (419).

On the Republican side, Tom Banks defeated Daniel Hunter, 925-367 in a race where there was little campaigning in a district that is traditionally Democratic.

Jamnick, at her victory party at the office of township attorney Doug Winters, credited campaign workers and her track record for her victory.

"You can't just do it in an election," she said. "I've been a consistent person for 22 years.

"I'm a known entity. ... I've been beat up on by the best of them, and I'm still here.

"That means I represent my constituency well. They have confidence I'm going to go to Lansing and I'm not going to forget who sent me there."

She also pointed to hard work and the help of old political hands; Chester Wilson, retired from the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority, Bill Winters, who ran former Supervisor Wes Prater's campaign in 1992, and Bill Gagnon, a trustee and former township supervisor.

"Everyone took something into their precincts and brought something back," she said.

"Ninety percent of the single family households received literature from us. We went out and knocked on your door, and the door next door. That's the reason for our success."

Jamnick still has to defeat Banks in November, but in the 54th District there were 6,776 Democrat votes cast and 1,292 Republican votes cast in the primary.

In a four-way Democratic race, Jamnick received more than twice as many votes as the Republican party.

Third Ward was only city contest

By JIM KISE
Courier Staff

This time Barry LaRue won, in the second of two matches between Councilwoman Pam Cuthbert (D-Ward 3) and Councilman-elect LaRue.

LaRue defeated Cuthbert 388-277 in the Democratic primary election Tuesday, a margin that surprised many people, even LaRue.

"I thought it was going to be a lot closer," LaRue said.

"Going into it, I thought there is a certain power in incumbency, so I touched on every part of the ward, the rental housing, even on EMU's campus at Brown Munson. I worked the east side, the fringe neighborhoods. I went to apartments above store fronts on Michigan Avenue. I pounded everything, the historic district. I tried not to leave any stone unturned."

Cuthbert was surprised by the margin, too.

"I know there seems to be quite a bit of turnout by people who we have noticed have not been voting the last few years," she said.

"Perhaps they decided to come forward and vote this time. I think Barry LaRue and Mike Homel worked very well together in this ward to get Barry back on City Council."

LaRue said he plans to work for constituents.

"The whole theme of the election was energy, personal service, wanting to help people in their neighborhoods with their concerns, ... taking care of constituents' needs, and trying to improve the services of the city as it affects people in their own neighborhood," he said.

Cuthbert said she will continue to be involved in the community, and politics, and will run again.

"This is just my chance to take a well deserved rest," she said. "My political life is not over. My political career is not over.

"I'm too committed to this community, and to everything we have done over the last five years, particularly over the last three years, to move this city forward. I hope it will continue to do that. I hope that Barry will work with Council and not work against Council. I want to see this community continue to move forward.

Incumbent Democrats win contested County Commission races

Two incumbent Democrat county commissioners coasted to victories in the primary election Tuesday, though both have Republican competition in the November general election.

Martha Kern, serving her second term as a commissioner after she opted not to run for re-election as Superior Township treasurer, defeated Rodrick Green, 1,020-673, a 60 percent majority.

Kern will face Republican Ralph Sidney, who drew 663 votes in the Republican primary, for the Second District Commission seat. Sidney was not opposed in the Republican primary.

Suzanne Shaw, a long-time Democrat activist but only an officeholder since 1994, defeated Pamela Hall 627-491, or 56 percent to 44 percent, in the Democratic race for the 14th District County Commission seat.

Shaw will face Republican Ann Savickas, who received 242 votes as the only Republican candidate on Tuesday's ballot in the 14th District.

In other local races, Congresswoman Lynn Rivers, who was unopposed in the Democratic primary for the 13th Congressional District, received 13,634 votes. She will face Tom Hickey, who was unopposed in the Republican primary, in November. Hickey received 3,882 votes in Tuesday's primary.

There was no competition in either the Democratic or the Republican primaries in the 17th and 18th District State Senate races.

In the 17th, Democrat Lynn Owen, who received 949 votes in Tuesday's primary, will face incumbment GOP State Sen. Beverly Hammerstrom, who received 1,162 votes on Tuesday.

In the 18th, incumbent Democrat Alma Wheeler Smith, who received 16,099 votes, will face John Hochstetler, who received 6,707 votes.

There also were other County Commission races of local interest in which there was no competition Tuesday. Those include:

District 6: Republican incumbent Raymond Schultz, 679 votes. There was no Democrat candidate on the ballot.

District 13: Incumbent Democrat Al Robinson, 726 votes. There was no Republican candidate on the ballot.

District 15: Incumbent Democrat Dillard Craiger, 905 votes. There was no Republican candidate.

In the Democrat primary for governor, Washtenaw County followed the state, giving Attorney Geoffrey Fieger the nod by a tiny margin. Fieger received 7,852 votes in Washtenaw County to Larry Owen's 7,333 and Doug Ross' 6,284.

On the Republican side, Incumbent Gov. John Engler, who easily won the GOP primary, outpolled challenger Gary Artinian 9,266 to 739 in Washtenaw County.

As of Wednesday morning, the unofficial vote totals from the Washtenaw County clerk's office included the totals from all 160 precincts in the county.

All of the millage requests on local ballots passed.

All Washtenaw County voters were asked to approve a renewal of .25 mill for parks and recreation, and they did, by a two-to-one margin, 18,388 to 9,273.

Both millage questions in Augusta Township also passed, but by much narrower margins.

A request for renewal of .75 mill or fire protection passed 392 to 261, while a request for .75 mill for police protection passed by an even narrower margin, 335 to 320.

And in Superior Township voters were asked to renew 1 mill for fire protection and 1 mill for police protection. The fire millage passed 916 to 300, and the police millage passed 977 to 242.

WISD reduces tax rate for 1998-99

The Washtenaw Intermediate School District Board of Education recently approved property tax rates for 1998-99 that are approximately .11 mills lower than the 1997-98 taxes that were levied on property in WISD's service area which includes Washtenaw County.

WISD's common debt fund millage is being reduced and the special education debt fund will not levy any millage in 1998-99. The common debt fund millage is being reduced because of growth in property values and the district will use already accumulated money in the special education debt fund to pay it off.

Washtenaw Literacy holds picnic

Washtenaw Literacy held its Annual Picnic last week in Prospect Park.

This year the picnic was planned entirely by Washtenaw Literacy adult learners.

Learners solicited $85 in donations from Sam's Club/Wal-Mart, Target, and Kroger. They also obtained a donation of a park fee waiver from the City of Ypsilanti.

A member of Washtenaw Literacy's Learner Advisory Board who worked on fund-raising said, "I already know I can tell my story to let people know about literacy. I want to see how else I can help Washtenaw Literacy."

Washtenaw Literacy is a volunteer-based literacy organization that provides free literacy services to adults in Washtenaw County.

Learners play important leadership roles in the organization.

Subdivision going back to planners

By JIM KISE
Courier Staff

A 301-unit subdivision is planned for Whittaker Road, a companion to the Partridge Creek project under construction now.

Last week, the Ypsilanti Township Planning Commission tabled action on the preliminary plat for the new project, but it should be back for consideration late this month or in early September.

Township Planning and Development Coordinator Kevin Kwiatkowski said there are issues with the plan that have not been resolved since pre-conceptual meetings with the developer.

But, "he's willing to work with us, we're willing to work with him," Kwiatkowski said.

Milt Rotenberg, based in Bloomfield Hills, is planning a development of homes on 80-foot lots, to accommodate side entrance garages.

Rotenberg hasn't mentioned a price, but after building the first Partridge Creek, he saw people wanted larger lots with the side entry garages, Kwiatkowski said.

The issues to be resolved have to do with street configuration. The plan has many cul de sacs and ovals now, Kwiatkowski said.

Ypsilanti Township's Planning Consultant wants the streets to have more of a grid-style layout, open space more centrally located and more existing trees kept on the site, which is directly north of the first Partridge Creek.

The Planning Commission will make a recommendation that the Township Board of Trustees will either accept or reject.

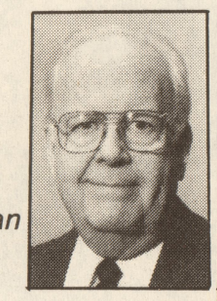
Message of the Week

You need to find balance in your life



Rev. Eldon Berry

First Presbyterian Church

Two very good friends of Jesus, Mary and Martha, had a disagreement while he was visiting their home. Martha criticized Mary for visiting happily with Jesus at the table, while she did the dishes alone in the kitchen. Now in those days the work ethic required that those two sisters should share the clean-up duties. Men may have been privileged to sit and talk, but women were expected to do the kitchen work. Jesus sided with Mary, suggesting that Martha was lost in the minutia of life and that both sisters should focus on the central meaning of life rather than becoming absorbed in mundane routines. Jesus was not advocating that the dishes be left unwashed. Martha was not being criticized for her concern for the kitchen. She was being criticized for failing to remember the value in contemplating the deeper concerns of life.

That confusion happens to me some days. The computer system malfunctions and I became so absorbed in resolving the quirk in the equipment which is but a means to the end, that the equipment receives more energy than the end it serves. How easy it is to be preoccupied with little problems and lose our focus on the broader picture. I have observed that some parents feel quite righteous about involving their children in every activity available. They have the best of intentions, but become so caught up in a multiplicity of activities, that they become glorified cab drivers. Consequently, their family life become hectic and disjoined and there is little time left to smell the roses, let alone attend worship and church school. When we become so caught up in a maze of activities, our priorities can become focused on life's mechanics rather than on its meaning. When the center of life becomes displaced its balance is thrown askew. When we become too absorbed in the things we do, and on the places we go, and on the people we know, then we loose touch with out central focus.

How little off center one must move before balance is lost. Do you remember those old-fashioned tops with a peg stuck through a small potato and a string wrapped around to start it spinning? When the potato is carefully centered on the peg, the top spins smoothly. But let it be out of balance and it wobbles wildly out of control. Martha became so obsessed with spinning around, that she lost her balance.

We may all need to realign our orientation, by returning Christ to the center of life. If we truly live our lives centered on the presence of Christ, then we may be able to move through this life without the wobbles that weaken. There is risk that we may go off in so many different worldly dimensions that we could win the world and lose our life. To Mary and Martha, God did not say, "you cannot serve both God and the world." Keeping the house in order is a useless endeavor unless life is lived with adequate expressions of love, devotion and divine purpose.

We, not God, have divided life into conflicting spheres. All of creation is one piece and aimed toward one purpose. All of life is, and must be, centered on one God and with one unifying purpose. The ordering of our lives is a most difficult endeavor, but it is God's challenge of love and freedom. May God forgive us, enlighten us, continue to love us, and guide us to find balance for our lives.

State

Rutledge plans on supporting his primary opponent in the November general election.

"I think from my perspective, this campaign was about voters looking at four Democrats, evaluating their educational background, experience and then selecting who they wanted to represent them in Lansing. The voters said they feel that Ms. Jamnick can best represent their interest in Lansing. I never believe the voters are wrong."

His plan at this point, he said, is to be supportive of the Democratic nominee and to help that person beat the Republican candidate any way he can.

He also stated that his supporters wish Jamnick the very best. "I think she will be our state representative and we will be supportive of her in any way we can."

Williams will also show Jamnick her support.

"I think we all worked hard and we all wanted to represent the district. It was a good race. We were all qualified candidates," Williams said.

The Courier couldn't reach Israel and Republican Banks for comment.

If Jamnick makes it to Lansing, she said the new office won't be a big switch.

"I'm always going to be concerned with how things affect residents," she said. "It's just a different level with different issues.

"I think how I handle myself in Lansing will be a combination of what I learn from everybody. From you, from him, people whose doors I knocked on, everybody who has touched my life in any way, be it positive, negative or neutral, is going to Lansing with me. That's who I am."

With the general election still three months away, Jamnick said the township board hasn't talked about her replacement as treasurer.

"The board will have to come together," she said. "We haven't really talked about it. We wanted to get through tonight. We just want to enjoy where we are."

Our Opinion

A success

Ypsilanti loves music and pageantry.

If anyone doubted it, then the Drum and Bugle Corps Midwestern Summer Games should have ended that doubt.

A lot of people probably think that a drum and bugle competition is one of those activities that could only be of interest to a few fanatics.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The competition, which featured 21 drum and bugle corps, drew more than 20,000 spectators to Rynearson Stadium.

The event generated more than $1.5 million in economic benefit to the community, as well as providing a weekend of entertainment to those who attended, and that, for the community at large, is a major benefit that results from a lot of hard work by the people who put on this show.

Led by the Convention and Visitors Bureau, a whole host of organizations sponsored and hundreds of volunteers worked to make this show a success.

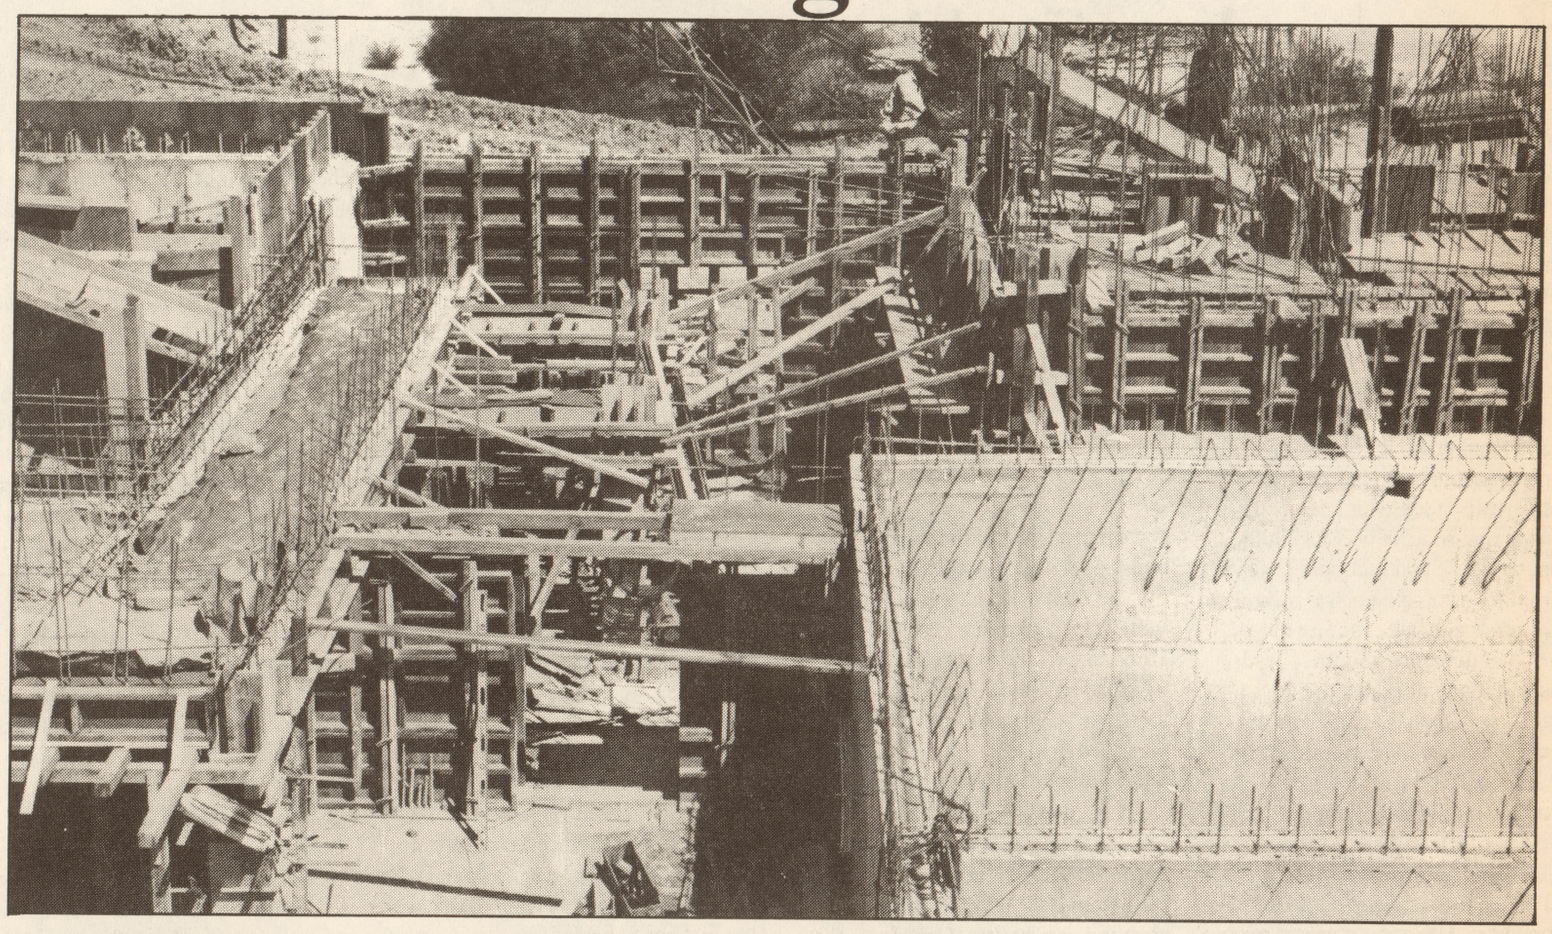
Looking back



An addition to the Catherine Street water treatment plant was built in the 1950s. The plant has been demolished.

The train trip of 1998 - one to remember

Karen Meier
The Family Room

They were a day late, skinnier than I remember, hairier too, and happier than most of the others I saw disembarking yesterday. They were grinning from ear to ear, they'd had the time of their lives!

Husband Ron and son Tony came home yesterday - after their two weeks hiking in the Rocky Mountains of northern New Mexico at the Philmont Scout Ranch. The whole thing was absolutely awesome - never to be forgotten. And always, from now on to forever, treasured by this father and son.

There was a torrent of conversation once Ron and Tony piled all their gear into our van. My other five children and I wanted to hear everything all at once as we drove home.

The adventures, the clear as clear can be skies, the rattlesnake story, the bear story, the nothing but water to drink for two weeks, the coyotes and stars at night, the rarified air at 12,500 feet on Mt. Baldy, the rock climbing, the burro racing, the horseback riding on the dirt trail in the back country, the dry, dry heat of day, the cold, silent moonlit nights, branding their hiking boots, shooting clay pigeons, switchbacks, sore backs, and glad to be back, yet definitely glad to have been there - to the tops of the mountains.

The words tumbled out as we drove along; one incredible picture conjured up after another in our minds. (The pictures from the photo store should be ready day after tomorrow. I can't wait!)

Anyway, they're home. We're all together, and I've been spending the last 24 hours cooking, cooking, cooking, and watching these "mountain" men eat and eat and eat! And sleep.

And I certainly can understand the need for both. The sleeping was especially in a deficit situation when they arrived yesterday, Saturday. They had left New Mexico on Thursday by rail. They boarded the train in Raton, New Mexico, in the late afternoon after having waited 2 ½ hours for it to get to the station.

One of the axles, it seems, was sort of broken and needed fixing and so the delay. Once fixed, the train was on its way, eastward bound. The group of boys and dads were to switch trains in Chicago Friday afternoon and arrive just before midnight in Ann Arbor that night.

But a "funny thing" happened along the way, actually many "funny things." A terrible middle of the night lightning storm in the far western territory of Kansas caused the train to be delayed for yet another 2½ hours.

The train just halted, dead in its tracks in the middle of nowhere, and just plain didn't move. Then once the storm passed, the train began moving again, fast, trying to make up time. Hours later, Kansas City came into view. But, alas, the train stopped dead in its tracks again. This time the bridge ahead had washed out. Pfffft, gone.

Another two hours, waiting for a navigator/train pilot guy to guide their passenger train along the freight rail route. The freight rail route served as an alternative to the washed out passenger rail route.

On the freight route, the passenger train couldn't go faster than 45 miles an hour or so. So with all the delays and the slow-as-snail route from Kansas City to Chicago, the train missed the connecting departure for Ann Arbor by exactly 10 hours and one minute. The train had pulled in at 2 a.m. Saturday.

The station was desolate, the travelers weary. Train travel had come to the end of its line for them in the Windy City at that dark, lonely, predawn hour. The train company felt quite sheepish about these trail-weary and rail-weary scouts and dads and so arranged a meal "stipend" and a bus for them.

The bus would whisk them to an airport, Midway in Chicago.

And so there they were, at 4 a.m. in the airport, the boys and dads, sleep-deprived and kind of looney. They ordered a meal, breakfast I guess - $70 worth of pizza, pop, and doughnuts.

Yuck!! The mountain trails had evidently toughened up not only their muscles, but their guts too. Who could eat pizza, pop, and doughnuts at 4 a.m.???

Anyway, four hours later, a jet filled with Detroit-bound passengers left Chicago - with our guys on it.

The train company had seen to that, that was how they last-minute choreographed this crazy "Planes, Trains, and Automobiles" (and don't forget, buses too) show.

Their plane landed in Detroit's Metro Airport at 10:08 a.m. - two minutes ahead of airline scheduled time, but 11 hours late, by rail schedule.

It was kind of like an "Odyssey," the trip home, an exciting, excellent adventure. It was in its imperfectness, actually a perfect ending to their adventure of a lifetime, their two weeks in the Wild West.

I can just see it now, 40 years from now, Ron pushing 80, Tony in his mid-50s, and we'll all be gathered 'round at Thanksgiving or something, and those two will start reminiscing about this, the summer of '98.

And the laughter and the often-told stories will resonate and ring through the house.

They'll always have that. The two of them, father and son. And the rest of us, why we'll celebrate the memories too, and include this summer of '98 in our prayers of thanksgiving!

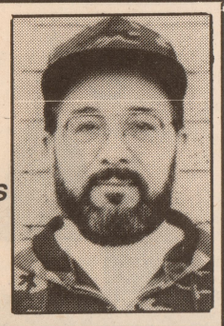
Jerry Posey

Outdoors Writer



The temperatures are bouncing around in the eighties, the trees and bushes are still full of their green plumage and the bug patrol makes traveling in the woods and fields almost unbearable.

This is not the time of the year most people think about deer hunting. But it is a good time to get a jump on those who will still be looking for a good place to ambush their quarry when the deer season finally opens.

Once the deer season ends, around the first of January each year, the deer return to their regular stomping grounds and habits that were interrupted when the first hunters started tromping around in the woods.

The cold winter has come and gone and food is once again available within a few steps of wherever a hungry deer may be.

This is a very good time to be in the field to get an idea of the number of deer in the area you plan to hunt later and find out where they are hanging out.

I might take the time remind those of you who do decide to get in a little early scouting, that not all of the deer you find in your summer explorations will remain in that immediate area right on through the hunting season. But the knowledge you pick up at this time of the year will give you a head start when you get ready to do your serious planning as the season draws nearer.

This is the ideal time to check with the landowner to make sure you still have permission to hunt the property. Take the time to visit, if he has time, and discuss the previous season's hunting and what your plans may be during the upcoming year. You never know, he may be able to give you a few tips about where he has seen the big one hanging out as he traveled around his property.

When I make one of these early season field trips, I usually wear a lightweight camouflage outfit to help me to blend in with the scenery just as I would during the hunting season. I also try to wear some kind of old footwear that I don't hold too dear to my heart, because I realize the chances of me being in the water or mud up to my knees are very good at this time of the year.

The use of buck lures or scent killers are not necessary on outings of this kind since the scent I leave as I make a pass through an area won't be a problem if I will only be passing that spot the one time.

The most valuable piece of equipment needed on one of these trips is a decent pair of binoculars. I usually carry my old faithful 7 x 35's that I use during the regular season. The use of the binoculars is the key to seeing the deer before they see you, just as it is later in the year. But seeing deer is not the only reason you are in the field on a trip of this kind. Much can be learned by reading the signs showing where the deer have been, just as it can when you actually see them on the hoof.

Using a very slow movement through an area will usually prove to be the best method, almost the same way you would when actually hunting. The best part here though is, you are not loaded down with the insulated clothing, the thermos, the weapon and other equipment needed for a successful day of real hunting.

Rather than looking for live deer as you slowly pass through an area, you should be looking for fresh bedding signs in the grass or old leaves. This will tell you where the spots are that the deer feel the safest or most comfortable. Make a note of things like this. There is a good chance this same area will also be used in the same way later, when the season is open.

Ypsi Connie Mack team has promising first year

By RAY SAARI
Courier Sports Writer

"It's always a struggle to get a new baseball team organized, but when it comes together and you see the kids playing, it's worth all the trouble it took, said Ron McCarty, coach and manager of the A Squad of the Ypsilanti Connie Mack baseball team.

In its first year, the team went 9-12 and finished the season in the American Legion tournament in Onstead, in which the Ypsilanti B Squad, the other half of the developmental program, came away as runner-up.

"Our statistics are misleading, and we actually did not keep a lot," McCarty said. "It wasn't about winning and losing, even if we had to keep score. It was about getting players in the game, and giving everyone a chance to play."

The summer experience will be valuable for all the players who participated, McCarty said.

"We drew from several schools. and the players will go back to their varsity teams nest year richer for their experience."

The A Squad was composed of players who had not yet graduated, mostly Ypsilanti, Willow Run and Calvary Christian students.

In line with the developmental theory, players moved freely between the two squads.

"When the B Squad had a tournament which wasn't Legion sanctioned, we would send a couple of players up for seasoning and when they had someone who needed work, they would send him down to us," McCarty said.

For that reason alone, hitting and pitching records are spotty, McCarty said, but three standout hitters made their marks.

Ypsilanti freshman Yeotequic Carraco, who played with the A Squad part time, hit .393 in 11 games. Of the regulars, Paul McCarty and Matt Caudill (both Ypsilanti) went 1-2 in average. McCarty hit .389, with 22 runs and 19 RBI, and Caudill finished with a .325 average and led the team in doubles. He scored 17 runs and had nine RBI.

The pitching staff was spread over the team, McCarty said, but the hurler with the most innings was Scott Maddock (Calvary Christian), who had a 4-3 record. Paul McCarty and Adam Rhodes (Willow Run) also made mound appearances and Wes Wooten, who was on the B Squad roster, was a regular visitor to the mound for the A Squad.

"We played in a good league and except for the Onstead tournament, we were in every game," McCarty said. "I think we might have been overmatched there with the Adrian teams."

The A Squad lost to the teams which finished first and third in the tournament, but McCarty doesn't regret the experience.

"It's all part of the game," he said. "We learned something from it, and I'm sure this year will help us set up, and become more competitive next year.

Legion caps season with 2nd in district

By RAY SAARI
Courier Sports Writer

Without the dedication and determination of Dave Keskitalo, Bob Kosky, and a handful of other volunteers, there might not have been a runner-up trophy for Post 282 in the recently completed Onstead American Legion tournament.

The Ypsilanti Post team came away with a second place finish in the district, and a handful of lessons learned in both theat tournament, other tournaments and an understanding of what will be needed next year to make the team more competitive.

Not that a 19-9 record and a second place district finish, another second place in an earlier tournament, and a 5-2 record in the Toledo Invitational which resulted in more hardware for the team.

The team also earned a third place trophy at a mid-season tournament.

Keskitalo hinted that the team was born out of desperation, when it became apparent that without help there were a number of players who would be shut out of summer baseball.

"The league that graduates usually played in folded, and that left a huge void," he said. "There was a league for players who would be going back to their schools next fall, but nothing for the seniors, and then we head about the Legion program."

The two coaches decided to revive an old tradition, and sought Legion sponsorship. It fit right into the need, Keskitalo said, "because they told us we couldn't have a team of just Ypsilanti High School players. We wanted to expand it to other areas, so we went recruiting."

The result was a team composed of half graduated seniors and the remainder of players who would return to their schools next fall. Schools included YHS, Willow Run, Lincoln and Milan.

Another need, Keskitalo said, was the recognition that the developmental team of this and subsequent years would need someplace to go to when they aged out of Connie Mack and similar programs.

"The Legion program will meet a lot of our needs," he said.

It took time and patience, but when it was time to play baseball, all the elements were in place and the organizers knew they had the know how and the talent to make it work, and they developed an understanding of all the details and pitfalls that wouldn't let it work.

"We got a lot out of the summer," Keskitalo said. "We learned for example that we need to start scheduling earlier. We only knew two of the other six teams in the district tournament,, and if we are to go to the zone, we need to schedule these teams in the season. We also will spend more time recruiting."

Also, over the summer, many administrative contacts were made

Becoming skillful golfer is a matter of practicing

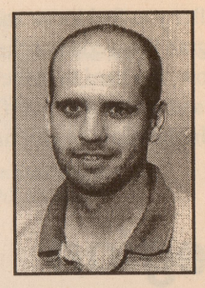
The Golf Column



We've all heard the old adage "practice makes perfect." Well the results are in, it's true. The more you practice any activity the better you become. Golf is no exception. But unless you have an extra six to eight hours a day you won't have enough time to practice everything. You must learn to use your practice time wisely.

It's widely known among professional golfers that the golf course is not the place to fix a mistake in your swing. You might be able to come up with a Band-Aid solution to a problem, but to really fix a swing it should be done on the practice range. This holds true for all golfers not just those who fancy themselves as professionals.

Students works displayed at Riverside Arts Center

What has been described as a studio rivaling the University of Michigan's School of Architecture in size has now been transformed into gallery space in the Club Room of the Riverside Arts Center for the month of August.

And 12 talented young artists are showing their most recent works there.

This summer's paintings, drawings, and ceramic tiles relating to the Ypsilanti Historic District will be on exhibit at the Riverside Arts Center through Aug. 20.

Four weeks of history and art lessons, tours of the district, and extensive studio experience occupied the mornings of 12 pupils ranging from kindergarten through juniors in high school.

The first summer program of the Riverside Arts Academy, the concept is expected to be expanded and repeated again next summer.

Open during all events at the Riverside Arts Center this month, the Academy's exhibition may also be seen by group and organizational tours by calling the director at 741-4273.

A Grand Closing will be held for family, friends, and the general public the day before Heritage Festival: 7-9 p.m., Aug. 20.

The Academy's first students send thanks to the Art Center's many neighbors for helping to make the first year's program a success: Rochelle Balcom, James Thomas Mann, Home Care's Sherri Newman, Materials Unlimited, the many members of the Central Business Community, members of the Depot Town Association, the Ypsilanti Automotive Heritage Collection, the Ypsilanti Historical Museum & Archives, High Scope Educational Research Foundation, Highland Cemetery, St. Luke's Episcopal Church, the Community High School library collection, the Detroit Historical Museum, the Heidelberg Project, the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, Pewabic Pottery, and many, many others.

Countless homeowners and residents are also to be recognized for their interest and helpful information along the Academy's daily sketching tours in the District.

Students found expert resources at every turn who made the 19th century environment come alive for them on a regular basis.

A variety of sponsors made the Academy possible for its first session: the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation, the City of Ypsilanti Parks & Recreation Department, NAACP/ACT-SO, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, and a number of private sponsors of student scholarships.

The Academy's first students included Tim Ebeling, Camille Ellsworth, Anthony Ellsworth, Lewie Hickson, Emmet Jones, Charlotte Maurer, Michelle Pappas, Ariana Riegel, Shaleena Senior, Shana Shoem, and Leonithas Volakis.

Teachers in the Academy were Mary Culver, Tom Dodd, Carolyn McKeever, and Susi Stiles.

Requiring a portfolio review for admission was an early requisite from the teachers and that standard is will continue into future offerings of the Academy.

Parents of the Academy students are due their recognition as well.

Not only did they attend the first day's orientation, but they reviewed their student's work daily, and many participated in field trips in Ypsilanti and Detroit.

Already there is talk of adding a theatre arts component to next summer's Academy, and plans will be created and modified in the coming month's planning sessions.

Another modification may permit students to register for individual weekly sessions according to subject matter interest.

The Riverside Arts Center is located at 76 N. Huron Street, one block north of Michigan Avenue. Parking is available.

For more information, call 741-4273.

Golf

Now that I've convinced you to spend some time on the practice range let me go further and convince you how to practice. Most people when first stepping foot on the practice range see the large open space and their eyes open wide as they notice the 300-yard marker. It then becomes their mission to grab the big gun (driver) and go for the fence. I must admit that I've done this once or twice before, but I don't recommend it.

To use your practice time wisely you should follow a routine that incorporates the following. First, stretch out a little. If your muscles are tight you'll be lucky not to pull a muscle much less hit a good golf shot.

After you feel loose and ready to go, grab the wedge or the nine iron. I know, it's hard to leave the big clubs under wraps, but it will pay off. In the game of golf half of your strokes will be from 100 yards in. Practicing the shorter shots will cut more strokes off your score than spending the whole time on the driver.

Now you have your nine iron or wedge in your hands and a 100 golf balls. Many people are under the impression that the first one to hit them all wins. This is not true. Take your time and make each shot count. Hit each shot like you would on the golf course. Take aim at a target and visualize the ball flying to it. Then make your swing. Do this with each shot and you'll see the improvement the next time on the course.

After you've hit 10 to 15 balls with your short irons, slowly work your way through your bag. Start with the short irons and finish with the driver. Most people like to save a few balls at the end to try to hit the kid in the covered wagon picking up the balls. All right, go ahead, but remember it's very rare to have to hit a shot at a moving target on the golf course.

Now practice isn't over yet. From the range you should head to the putting green. Approach this the same way. Start with the short putts and move back. Putting is mostly about confidence. I recommend that you start with a three-foot putt and make three in a row. After doing that, move back another foot or two and putt until you make another three in a row. Continue this until you are confident you can make any putt out there or until it's your turn to tee off.

Make your practice count. Don't rush through it unless you are one of those speed golfers who run from shot to shot. But the best advice for most of us is to practice as you would play on the golf course.

which will make organizing for next season much easier, and the whole operation will be much easier to administer.

The baseball itself was a joy, Kosky said.

"We saw good teams, and played at a very competitive level," he said. "Those players who are going back to their teams for another season at the high school level have improved, and will be better for the experience."

Another of the aims, Kosky said, was to get as many players involved as was possible.

"I think we did that," he said. "We played everyone who came out."

The team was competitive, Kosky said, pointing to a team batting average of .306, and a defense which held the opposition to .257.

Joel Slavin (Lincoln) led the squad with a .419 batting average and also led the team in slugging percentage with .595.

Shane Rhodes (Willow Run) batted .375and was second in RBI with 19.

Christian Kosky finished with a .370 average, led the team in home runs and RBI with 28.

On the mound, Nick Sager (Lincoln) pitched the most innings (44) and gave up the few3est hits (29), while earning a 4-1 record and 2.98 earned run average.

The pitcher with the most wins was Evan Keskitalo, with a 5-1 mark and a 5.73 ERA. Slavin had a 4-1 record and the lowest ERA, 2.38.

Slavin and Sager both threw no-hitters. Slavin had a two-hitter, and Sager a one-hitter.

you to figure how long ago the bedding spots were used, since deer usually leave these droppings soon after standing, especially if they have been laying undisturbed for any length of time. Dark, shiny droppings mean they were expelled recently, while the faded, dull ones have probably been there for a while. Take time to notice the difference.

The tracks around known watering holes, or on the banks of streams and creeks, may also help you to determine where the deer are watering and where they are crossing these water sources. Watch closely for these signs.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE
YPSILANTI TOWNSHIP ZONING ORDINANCE #74

TAKE NOTICE THAT A PUBLIC HEARING WILL BE HELD BY THE YPSILANTI TOWNSHIP PLANNING COMMISSION AT 7:30 P.M., ON TUESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1998 YPSILANTI TOWNSHIP CIVIC CENTER, 7200 S. HURON RIVER DRIVE, YPSILANTI, MICHIGAN TO HEAR OBJECTIONS IF ANY TO THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE YPSILANTI TOWNSHIP ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 74, THE SAME BEING IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF ACT 184 OF THE PUBLIC ACTS OF MICHIGAN FOR THE YEAR OF 1943 AS AMENDED, AND THE PROVISIONS OF ACT 168 OF THE PUBLIC ACTS OF MICHIGAN FOR THE YEAR 1959 AS AMENDED.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT:

Amend Definitions to replace the current definitions for "Day Care Facilities" with the following new definitions:

Adult care facility: any structure constructed for residential purposes that is licensed by the State of Michigan pursuant to Public Act 287 of 1972, Public Act 116 of 1973, or Public Act 218 of 1979. These acts provide for the following types of residential structures:

1. Adult foster care facility: a residential structure that is licensed to provide room, board and supervised care, but not continuous nursing care, for unrelated adults over the age of 17, in accordance with Public Act 218 of 1979, as amended, and the Adult Foster Care Administrative Rules as administered by the Michigan Department of Social Services. The following four (4) types of Adult Foster Care Homes are provided for by these rules:
2. Adult foster care family home: a residence for six (6) or fewer adults. Licensee must live in the home; and local zoning approval is not required prior to issuance of license.
3. Adult foster care small group home: residence for twelve (12) or fewer adults. Licensee is not required to live in the home. Local zoning approval is required prior to issuance of a license only if seven (7) or more residents will live in the house.
4. Adult foster care large group home: residence for thirteen (13) to twenty (20) adults. Licensee is not required to live in the home. Local zoning approval is required prior to issuance of a license.
5. Congregate facility: residence for more than twenty (20) adults.

Child care organization, state licensed: a facility for the care of children under 18 years of age, as licensed and regulated by the State under Act No. 116 of the Public Acts of 1973 and Act No. 218 of the Public Acts of 1979 and the associated rules promulgated by the State Department of Social Services. Definitions for various care organizations are listed below:

1. Child care center or day care center: a facility other than a private residence, receiving more than six (6) preschool or school age children for group day care for periods of less than twenty-four (24) hours a day, and where the parents or guardians are not immediately available to the child. It includes a facility which provides care for not less than two (2) consecutive weeks, regardless of the number of hours of care per day.

   The facility is generally described as a child care center, day care center, day nursery, nursery school, parent cooperative preschool, play group, or drop-in center. "Child care center" or "day care center' does not include a Sunday school conducted by a religious institution or a facility operated by a religious organization where children are cared for during short periods of time while persons responsible for such children are attending religious services.
2. Child caring institution: a child care facility which is organized for the purpose of receiving minor children for care, maintenance, and supervision, usually on a 24-hour basis, in a building maintained for that purpose, and operates throughout the year. It includes a maternity home for the care of unmarried mothers who are minors, an agency group home, and institutions for mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed minor children. It does not include hospitals, nursing homes, boarding schools, or an adult foster care facility in which a child has been placed.
3. Foster family home: a private home in which at last one (1) but not more than four (4) minor children, who are not related to an adult member of the household by blood, marriage, or adoption, are given care and supervision for twenty-four (24) hours a day, for four (4) or more days a week, for two (2) or more consecutive weeks, unattended by a parent or legal guardian.
4. Foster family group home: a private home in which more than four (4) but less than seven (7) children, who are not related to an adult member of the household by blood, marriage, or adoption, are provided care for twenty-four (24) hours a day, for four (4) or more days a week, for two (2) or more consecutive weeks, unattended by a parent or legal guardian.
5. Family day care home: a private home in which one (1) but less than seven (7) minor children are received for care and supervision for periods of less than twenty-four (24) hours a day, unattended by a parent or legal guardian, except children related to an adult member of the family by blood, marriage, or adoption. It includes a home that gives care to an unrelated child for more than four (4) weeks during a calendar year.
6. Group day care home: a private home in which more than six (6) but not more than twelve (12) children are given care and supervision for periods of less than twenty-four (24) hours a day unattended by a parent or legal guardian except children related to an adult member of the family by blood, marriage, or adoption. It includes a home that gives care to an unrelated child for more than four (4) weeks during a calendar year.
